3. Prior to making the request, a delegation of four members of the firm, Adam and Kühn of the raw material procurement section, Auer, the production chief, and Albert Heinitz, visited Berlin to present their raw material requirements in person. [redacted] despite their attempts to see every one who might be in a position to help them they had been shunted from office to office without even a promise of help. They first saw Engelke of the Main Administration, Chemical Raw Materials, who advised them to see State Secretary Albert (?) Binz of the Ministry of Trade and Supply. Binz did not receive them. Thereafter, the delegation went to see Techauer, chief of the Division of Materials Distribution; Fleischer, Secretary of Minister of Machinery Construction Gerhard Ziller; Minister Ziller himself; Michaelis of the Central Control Commission; Dr. Fritze of DAHA; and Kempte of the Central Committee of the SED. [redacted] 50X1-HUM
- [redacted] all the persons contacted were fully aware of the shortage of rasorit and boron in the Soviet Zone, but none of them seemed to be able to be of any help. The delegation was informed that, according to the minutes of the 15 June 1951 meeting of the "Great Planning Committee", it had been agreed that 60 per cent of the production facilities of the Jena firm would have to be shut down as of 31 August 1951 unless the required raw materials could be procured [redacted] 50X1-HUM

[redacted] The possibility of obtaining rasorit and boric acid from the Chemische Fabrik Billwärdter AG, Hamburg 48, Billbrookdeich 20, was also discussed. 50X1-HUM
